

Edward J. Sheehan, Jr.

President and CEO
Concurrent Technologies Corporation (CTC)

Ed possesses over 39 years of corporate experience. He continues to lead the innovative technology successes at CTC. Ed also leads the corporate citizenship and social responsibility programs for the enterprise.

In FY19, CTC and its for-profit affiliate, Enterprise Ventures Corporation, were awarded $76 million in contracts from its clients. This work will require 30 to 50 new employees.

During Ed's tenure as CEO, which began in January 2009, CTC has been awarded numerous technology and business related awards.

Ed also serves on the board of several industry associations, public service, and charitable organizations, including the National Defense Industrial Association, the Friends of the Flight 93 National Memorial, and the Pennsylvania Society. Ed also serves on the board of 1st Summit Bank.

Ed and his wife of 38 years, Julie, have four daughters, one son-in-law, and one grandson.

George W. Appley

Executive Vice President and COO
Concurrent Technologies Corporation (CTC)

Mr. Appley leads and manages a comprehensive array of services and programs in support of CTC's day-to-day operations. He leads all assigned internal operations, working in partnership with the CEO, cocreating the company's strategic plan and implementing new processes and approaches to achieve the strategic plan. He oversees three divisions: Engineering, Information Technology, and Readiness; and directs CTC's focus on business development.

Mr. Appley joined CTC in 1991 and has served in various roles of increasing responsibility, including Senior Vice President of the Technology Division, Chief Information Officer, as well as other leadership, program management, and technical positions. His accomplishments include transforming IT from an internal cost center to a strategic enabler of the business and being named a finalist for Pittsburgh CIO of the Year in 2006, 2011, and 2012.

Mr. Appley earned a BS in Computer Science from Pitt-Johnstown.